SLEEPERS DITCHED

Near Belmont by a Culvert's Being Worked Out, But Fortunately Nobody Was Seriously Injured.

The G. R. & I. night passenger train from the north, which is due here at 6:20 a. m., met with a serious accident near Mill Creek yesterday morning. Three sleeping care, containing twenty persons, were ditched, but fortunately no one was seriously injured. The heavy rains had caused a washout, which, however, the engine, baggage car and two coaches passed over in safety, but the heavy sleepers rolled on their side down the embankment. The train, which was in charge of Engineer Van der Vost and Conductor Frank Lambkin, was running at a low rate of speed at the time of the accident. Had it been otherwise there must surely have been a great loss of life.

Conductor Lambkin received a slight aprain of his knee.
The train for the north yesterday morning went around by Sparta to Cedar Springs on the C. & W. M. track.

The track was repaired yesterday, and trains are all right at the present time. There are 530 pages of text and 26 tull page portraits and illustrations to The Herald's "Life of Benjamin Harrison." Subscribe for this paper and you will get the book free. Order at once.

The Chicago Style.

The editor of a Chicago paper was itting at his desk with a market report before him when a man came in. "I am from Eoston," said the visitor, and I should like a position on this pa-
